About Old Hickory Golf Club: From the outset, course designer P.B. Dye had a vision of Old Hickory as a world-class golf course. With approximately 260 acres with which to work, P.B. was given the rare design opportunity to mold and shape the championship course in the fashion he envisioned. He was determined to turn Old Hickory into one of the finest golf courses that ever carried his signature. The key, P. B. reports, has been surrounding himself with people who love golf and who know how to translate that passion into imaginative golf ground. It's not enough to design on paper and to hand the plans over to a builder. "The best courses are done by the people who love golf," says P. B. "I can't teach the guy who built a highway to love golf. But I can get the kid who loves golf to operate a bulldozer."
